EDITORIAL NEWS

Seeking The Small Towns

Not too long ago a national weekly newspaper reported on the trend of big business to move its plants into smaller towns. The report was highly enlightening.

One firm which had operated in a large metropolitan area for half a century, recently erected plants in two small communities, and the company head reported that the concern was delighted with the results.

In the first place, he said, the business had been virtually unknown in the large city, and workers were not in touch with the needs of the people in smaller towns who used the product manufactured. In the small towns, where the two new plants were opened, citizens were eager to have the new plants locate in their community, and helped raise money for the building, on a loan basis, and took a great interest in the business enterprise. They were happy, contented, good workers, and had the interest of the business at heart.

Labor relations in such a plant, and in a community which appreciates the location of such a plant, are of the best.

These are the reasons, in brief, why so many big corporations are building plants in the nation's smaller communities. This is good for the nation, and produces good management - labor relations, and for that reason the trend will probably accelerate in the coming years.

Why Worry

A famous physician recently said that about one-third of all the ailments which came to his attention originated in the mind, as a result of worry. It is a known fact that most of us worry too much, and many of us worry over things over which we have no control.

In the field of giving advice, perhaps the best advice one can give to those inclined to worry is "Stop worrying." To emphasize the fruitlessness of worry, one should keep in mind the following things:

First, about forty per cent of the things people worry about never happen. Second, another thirty per cent of the things we worry about have already happened and are out of our control. Therefore, about seventy per cent of the things we worry about have already happened or will not happen, so the chances are —whenever you worry — that you are wasting your time, and contributing to the deterioration of your health.

Another twelve per cent of the things we worry about are imaginary, and a further ten per cent are concerned with those who are well able to take care of themselves, and either do not need our worry, or do not want it.

That leaves only about eight per cent of our worries which may have any relation to reality, and while eight per cent of our worrying may be legitimate worrying, about things which will happen, some ninety-two per cent of our worrying is wasted effort.

Cost of Living Up

The cost of living rose again in June, reaching an all-time high. According to the Labor Department, price increases in food accounted for most of the increase.

However, food price increases are not the full story. While they accounted for most of the increase, there is genuine concern over the continuing spiral in the cost of living.

While the cost of living is moving upward only slowly, it continues to move upward. The latest increase in the cost of living means that about 600,000 workers will receive wage increases because of the hike in the June consumer price index. Other workers will also receive increases—those workers in private industry whose salaries are hinged to the same price index.

Of interest in the Labor Department's economical study concerning June, was the fact that the prices of new cars were down slightly, while appliances decreased in price for the fifth consecutive month. The Labor Department's statistics also showed that furniture prices were down slightly in June.

Nevertheless, the general trend is an increase in prices, and the cost of living is now at an all-time high.

The cost of living squeeze in recent years has hit hard among the white-collar workers and those millions who do not have their salaries tied to automatic increases when the cost of living rises.

Selfishness is the main cause of bad manners.

The best way to earn a rest is to complete your work.

A poll seems accurate when its results are for your side.

No human beings agree upon the meaning of happiness.

The educated individual, who ceases to study, soon becomes uneducated.

Everybody wants to be popular, but the price asked is often too exhorbitant.

Washington Notes

Budget Surplus

The Federal budget showed a surplus of $1,068,101,353 in the fiscal year that ended June 30. It was a spectacular improvement over the $12,400,000,000 deficit of the previous year.

Tiros I

The Weather Bureau has released the information that the Tiros I weather-eye satellite has performed an unexpected meteorological feat by photographing a "square" cloud that spawned tornadoes over Oklahoma.

The feat was hailed by meteorologists as indicating how future weather satellites should help in forecasting the weather and in detecting in advance such intense and destructive small storms as tornadoes.

Senate Warned

Senator Mike Mansfield, the Democratic Whip has warned pioneering law-makers to prepare for night meetings and six-days-a-week sessions when Congress returns to work.

The Montanan said a tentative legislative time table called for early consideration of a minimum wage bill sponsored by the Democratic Presidential nominee.

The House returns to work a week later than the Senate, on August 15.

Missile Project

The Navy has killed a project for developing a plane - launched guided missile called Corvus, after spending $80,000,000 on it.

An announcement said that the Navy had learned "much" from the project, but had discovered that the weapon had too limited use to warrent its further development.

Seeing America is a good way for Americans to spend their time and money.

We have found that it is much easier to make promises than to carry them out.

Everybody is willing to help the other fellow, provided he has the money to pay for it.

A good product, plus a fair price, and sensible advertising, equals the way to success.

We agree that Appomattox has a good climate, but so have 5,897 other communities.

If public speakers would prepare their speeches better, more people would listen to them.

Americans are great denouncers of the wrongs done by others, and great proclaimers of their own virtues.

People who put off their work from day to day, are always the ones to tell you how very busy they are.

Even the smartest individual has much to learn, and the smarter they are the more they realize this fact.

Never brag about something you expect to do: wait until it is accomplished, and then let others pass judgment on it.

Obituary

Mrs. Frank Allen O'Brien

On Monday, July 25, Mrs. Ida Torrence O'Brien, wife of Frank Allen O'Brien, died at her home near Appomattox. Born September 10, 1874, she was the daughter of Alfred and Agnes Coleman Torrence, and had lived her entire life in this county.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Mildred O'Brien Alvis, of Appomattox; Miss Kate O'Brien and Mrs. Louis Dahl, both of Farmville; one foster-daughter, Miss Edith O'Brien, of Bonn, Germany; and two foster -sons, Colonel Joseph L. O'Brien, of Petersburg, and John A. Torrence, of Malden, Massachusetts; also two brothers, Jessie L. Torrence, of Appomattox, and Ira E. Torrence, of Lynchburg, and two sisters, Mrs. Hallie T. Morris, of Appomattox, and Mrs. Sara T. Agee, of Farmville; four grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Her only son, Robert Alfred O'Brien, passed away a number of years ago.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday at 11:00 A. M., from the Robinson Funeral Home in Appomattox, with burial in the family cemetery. The officiating ministers were her pastor, Rev. Marvin Jacobs, and a former pastor, Rev. J. P. Leitner. The following men served as pallbearers: William D. O'Brien, H. A. Torrence, Vernon Torrence, Kermit Woodson, W. D. Morris, Wallace Torrence, Charles Agee, Cleve O'Brien, Charles Torrence and Dr. C. G. O'Brien.

Mrs. O'Brien lived a life of exemplary Christian beauty, unselfishness, and love in action. She will be remembered as a faithful wife and devoted mother, sharing her mother-love with two nephews and a niece, whom she brought up from infancy as her own. "Her children rise up and call her blessed."

She was a lifelong member of New Hope Baptist Church, where she played an outstanding part in all its activities until illness forced her to remain at home. She was a charter member of the New Hope W. M. U. and was an active member over a long period of years. True to her spirit of sharing with others what she, herself, had, Mrs. O'Brien with the help of another Christian leader, the late Mrs. W. J. Covington, Sr., organized a W. M. U. in the Canaan Baptist Church at Vera.

Not only was this estimable lady active in religious affairs, but in civic affairs as well. She was a charter member of the Robert Edward Lee U. D. C. and a very energetic wrker in the local Home Demonstration Club. To both of these organizations she made significant contributions.

Mrs. O'Brien had lived a long, full life of loyal, unselfish devotion to her family, her friends, her church, and her community, and we know that she has entered into her reward. Her life truly exemplifies the words of Micah 6:8: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."
